

We need you!

Everyone knows the story of the American Revolution. That's how white men got the vote in our democracy. But the story of how women got the vote -- beginning with a more than 72-year bloodless revolution -- is largely unknown. Here is your chance to help define and share that story to empower the next generation.

The National Votes for Women Trail.

A project of The National Collaborative for Women's History Sites, The National Votes for Women Trail is collecting sites from all over our country to allow us to tell the untold story of suffrage for all women, of all ethnicities. We currently have 32 State Coordinators and over 750 sites on our database. Our goal is 1,000 by the end of 2018. Our database will then become a mobile-friendly website that will be accessible to all, and searchable by a variety of criteria.

Participating is easy, and essential.

Once you have researched sites related to suffragists in your area, simply go to the link below, and enter your data (instructions can also be found at this link).

The entire story of suffrage is untold. We need your research to make it complete. Let's honor the tireless work of our suffragists for the centennial in 2020 that marks the beginning of women's suffrage in America. The suffragists did their part, now let's do ours.
